His Mysterious Malady

Bobby sat up and threw off the af-han impatiently. "I feel fine now," he ghan impatiently. "I feel fine now," he said. "I guess I'll go out for awhile."
His. father shook his head, "Hold on a minute," he commanded. "Where are all those perfectly terrible sensations you had yesterday when you stayed home from schoool?"

"Oh, well, that was a whole day and a sight ago." protested Bobby. "A feller could get well of 'most anything in that time."

Especially as this is Saturday afternoon," said his father, thoughtfully.
"You considered yourself a pretty sick boy yesterday."

"I was," said Bobby. "Gee, I felt something fierce! I never felt worse in my life."
"Then don't you think you ought to be very careful today?"

COMMENCEMENT

The following evening Prof. H. C. Lott of the State Normal delivered the commencement address on the "Capitalization of Man. Despite the extreme heat of the evening, Prof. Lott held his audience very closely and pleased everyone with his easy delivery and the high tenor of his remarks.

The lecture followed man through the four lines of his development, physical, mental, moral, spiritual, and impreased the fact that life is a success only in such degree as perfection is reached in these cardinal features.

Dr. S. N. Jusley presented the class with diplomas, and in his address took occasion to announce that our High School has been recently placed on the approved list of the University of plant pannuts and see how they grow. WOMAN ELECTED JUSTICE

Mrs. Mary Phares of Clinton, Second Office.

Bloomington, Ill.-Illinois' second woman justice of the peace, Mrs. Mary Phares of Clinton, whose campaign was started as a joke, and who did not know she was a candidate until notified of her election, has qualified for the position and/hung out her shingle. She is now ready to deal with any malefactor who may be haled before her, or will serve papers.

etc., for whomsoever may apply. She is diligently reading up in law and in the statutes which relate to the duties of justice of the peace and now that she has the job, proposes to go the limit and learn everything about the position that can be unearthed.

"It was started in fun," said Justice Phares, when asked about her new post. "Last winter, Attorney L. O.-Williams casually remarked in my hearing, that he was going to see that I was elected justice of the peace, when the first vacancy on the board He said he thought. I knew as much about weighing evidence and deciding controversies as the average masculine justice. I supposed he was joking and laughingly told him to go ahead and that it was all right with me.

Perhaps if I had conducted a campaign, I would have polled more votes, but I am satisfied and will try to be a just judge for

They are formulated from the conduct of those whose good taste and keen intuitions put them in position to set examples.

Much latitude is allowed individual taste in the matter of mourning apparel. Some people decry any special dress for those in mourning, on the ground that we should not divide our family as well as an outward token of a sense of loss. To ignore a death seems to east a slight upon the worth of the departed souk therefore, an inreasing number of persons in the best social circles assume what is called, "complimentary mourning." This is either a badge of mourning of some sort or the wearing of black for a short term. This is a different mut ter from the mourning apparel assumed by members of a family. Complimentary mourning does not involve the restrictions which that of relalives assumes. Certain fabrics are chosen for those in mourning. Disappointments of Our Lives

By REV. F. R. MARSH

What we see, largely determines what we are. The books we read and the sights we witness furnish much of the foodstuff out of which character is made. Indeed, we say broadly: "See man's activities to the boundaries of ais horizon.

It is not without significance that the children of Israel, dying from fever caused by the flery serpents, were told that everyone who looked should live. Surely the principle is of wider application than this isolated incident. It can be truly said that only those who look really live. Here is a blind man. THE FOURTH OF JULY.

It may have been fitting that noise and general jollinication, abandonment to "brag" were the prominent features of the Fourth of July of the boyhood of our nation, but we have reached our manhood days now and must put away the rattles and romps of children, and consider and act as becomes those who have reached maturity and from whom the world rightfully expects and demands man's performance and resulting good for humanity.

There are clouds over head and convulsions threatening under our feet, thanks to Almighty God for the past. we should carefully survey and consider the danger that exist on the ground we must march over in the future.

The field of politics has becomefield of battle, and in the turmoil and where man is pitted against man, there is neither time nor inclination to pay attention to any of the nice other with more regard for the derather than the exception, agle action taken by the state railroad commission in many months so-much among the shippers and railroads in Michigan as the order emanating from the office of Chairman C. L. Glasgow that the statute requiring uniform bills of lading shall be rigidly enforced

The law requires that the bills of lading shall be eight and one half inches wide and eleven inches long but a recent investigation started by a Chicago printing house, which failed to land a contract for a large manu-facturing firm, disclosed that the bills of lading were being printed on pa of various sizes and the penalty of the law for failure to observe this clause was called to the attention of the railroads.

As there is a provision in the statute that a circuit judge may upon con-viction impose a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year or both, the railroad officials ordered the shippers to secure bills of lading of uniform requirements of the law, and the rail road commission has received many requests-from these men that they b permitted to use their present supply.

consideration th commission decided that it would be unfair to the manufacturers and shippers to compel them to destroy abou $10,000 worth of bills, so the original order was rescinded and the old bills be used until January 1, 1911. All bills printed after June 21 must be of the required size.

PENDENCE

HE IMMORTAL instrument which was signed by John Hancock on July 4, 1776. has meant more than the growth and development of an independent nation on this side of the Atlantic. It was in itself the re-enact ment of the greatest bill of human rights ever penned, which received the signet of an unwilling king at Runnymede, and the birth of stitutional liberty. In these days of peace and plenty the Fourth of July is given to lutes of cannon and the ringing of bells and to the feu de joie," with variations, as John Adams predicted that it would be, yet the observance of the Fourth as an occasion for recalling memories past and giving thanks for the deeds of the patriot-forefathers is sporadicrather than general in the United States. The Declaration of Independence is not read from the rostrum, as it once was in every commu nity and the orators to the links have gone.

So much has been taken here as a matter of course that it seems hard to realize that this anniversary is celebrated in the very England from which liberty was wrested and that observances of it are officially ordered in many lands beyond the seas. The Fourth o July has become international in scope, for it has changed the governments of nations whose capitals are far from Independence half. So widespread have its effects become as studied in the light of the present day that in order to get the true value of all that the declaration signifies to the world in 1910 it is necessary to go back to the very beginning of American liberty.

Had not the ideas of government held by the colonists been essentially British there would probably never have been any Declara-tion of Independence. It is as natural for the Briton to demand his rights as it is for him to live. The War of the Revolution was largely due to the fact that the two thousand miles of water between London and the colonies caused parliament to lose sight of the ties of consanguinity and of race.

Although the original thirteen colonies were so essentially English in thought and feeling they had never actually been established by England as a national enterprise. The only one which had ever received any official aid whatever was Georgia, and that was not sufficient to carry any such feeling of dependence as is essential for the preserve tion of intimate colonial relations. The right to colonize the North American continent had been granted by charters from a British king. According to the feudal system, which was

The Declaration of Rights was a forerun-ner of the Declaration of Independence, There then rapidly becoming effaced the king owned

It was at one time soberly believed lands. It was at one-time soberly believed in England that gold and silver and precious stones could be had for the taking and that the natives were the possessors of fabulous weath. The king gave the charters in most cases with the idea that he would profit greatly from mines which would yield enormous returns to the royal exchequer.

When the colonists came here they found it necessary to make good their titles either by peaceful bargains with the Indians or by force of arms. From the very first the spirit of independence was fostered, for fiels which had to be maintained by constant-vigilanceand negotiations and by show of force did not earry with them a deep sense of obligation. Indeed, even at that early day, although for the throne the colonists entertained feelings of loyalty and devotion, a shrewd idea was abroad that the king did not really own the land which he had bestowed by his charter. The conquest of nature and of the savages beot a rugged independence which as the years went by became more and more distasteful to the authorities in England.

Yet the idea of separation from the crown was of slow growth. The forefathers main-tained that they were British subjects, although not living within the realm, as indeed was specified in some of the royal charters. The Massachusetts charter, for instance, sets forth that the colonists shall be considered "as if they and every one of them were born jects, then, they maintained that they should entitled to representation, and therefore each colony had its assembly, which determined upon all matters of the common weal and established rates of taxation. It was one of the principles expressed in the Magna Charto that the common council of the kingdom

Then came the of the liberty poles. Boston and Philadelphia were vortices of the storm. So emphatic was the profest that much of the act was repealed and duties were established on tea, which accounted for the sudden rain of tea in Boston harbor. > Throughout all this time of storm and strain the protests were made as British sub-jects, and that congress which met in Carpenter's hall in 1774 was still loyal to the crown. It petitioned the king, remonstrated with parliament and appealed to their brethren in England. Then came Lexington and Concord, The congress of 1775 made provisions for an army, with Washington as commander, and still pe-titioned. Thomas Jefferson was criticized at the time for lack of originality in the declaration. The for lack of originality in the declaration of document gained all the greater force from its statement of self-evident truths. Never was there a more masterly presentation of a bill of grievances than is contained in the Declaration,

CORN PLANTING IS OVER

THAT CANADIAN TRIP SHOULD NOW BE TAKEN.

If you had intended going to Can ada for the purpose of purchasing land on which to establish a home and accompanying some land company, whose holdings you proposed to look over or to go up on your own account to select one hundred and sixty acres of land free. you should delay no Corn-planting is over, your wheat crop is well ahead, and you have a few weeks' time before you are required in the fields again. Now make your intended trip. Reports at hand show that the crop prospects in Canada were never better than they are today. The cool weather has not affected the crop, but if anything, it has been a benefit. There has been plenty of moisture and those who have had their land properly prepared look upon this year as likely to be one of the best they have had. A great many are going up this season who expect to pay two or three dollars an acre more than they were asked to pay last year. Others homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would have been necessary last year. Still it is worth it. So it will be with you. Next year lands will be higher-priced and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to Central Canada now. It is expected that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern cuntries of the Continent. intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money tha can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the Hones may give us the answer."

Easy!" says Mistah Bones, "One is and such other social life as may be found anywhere. It is difficult to say the hest. Some are what district is the best. Some are preferred to others because there are friends already established. The Grand Trunk Pacific, on its way across the Continent, is opening up a splendid tract of land, which is being taken up rapidly. The other railways —the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern are extending branch lines into parts inaccessible a couple of years ago. With a perfect network of railways covering a large area of the agricultural lands it is not difficult to secure a location. Any agent of the Canadian Government will be pleased to render you assistance by idvice and suggestion, and a good plan is to write or call upon him. The Government has located these agents at convenient-points-throughout the States, and their offices are well equipped with a full supply of maps and literature.
